A short time ago Minville sold out his business in Havana and planned to go home. He reached here with a party of friends yesterday, but it was impossible to ascertain this morning who these friends were.

Minville retired about 9 o'clock last night, and at 1 o'clock this morning a lodger came downstairs and informed Dr. Ell'ott that there was a strong odor of illuminating gas in the hall on the second floor.

An investigation was instituted, and the origin of the trouble was traced to the rear room occupied by Minville.

Dr. Elliott succeeded in entering the apariment by getting on the fire-escape and through the window. As has been stated, he found the man lying on the bed. He had been dead probably an hour.

Insee were sent to the Coroner's office this morning.

It is said that Minville is not the real same of the dead man, but that he is a very wealthy man, who has been given from Cuba on account of some occuliar state of affairs there.

He has two sons in France, it is said, and is thought to be a widower.

His appearance and dress generally adjected that he was, or had been, a man of the higher walk of life.

The Coroner's office was notified today of the suspicious death of Emma the nineteen-year-old daughter of John Panzer, a harness-maker at mingled little with other tenants of fat.

Dr. Siff states that he was hastily to summened at about 9.30 o'clock last enight to attend the girl. He found her in a profound state of coma. He was told she had taken the poison only fifteen minutes before his arrival. Half a dozen women, said the doctor, were in the room, and they explained that she had taken a dose of carbolic acid by mistake.

the room, and they explained that she had taken a dose of carboilc acid by mistake.

Dr. Siff administered antidotes, but they had no effect on the patient, who was then practically dead.

The doctor asked that an ambulance be summoned, but the family, he says, emphatically refused. By means of the stomach-pump he diagnosed the case as one of poisoning from carboilc acid.

It is Dr. Siff's opinion that the girl had been poisoned some time before his arrival, as she had no convulsions when he reached the house, and which, he says, she must have had before his arrival, or the dose must have been such a large one as to almost immediately produce a profound state of coma.

The doctor further says that he asked for the bottle from which she took the poison, but it was not produced, and when the girl's father asked for a death certificate he refused it and notified the poilee.

The police are of the opinion that the girl was suffering from toethache and used carboilc acid, thinking it was creuset, and accidentally swallowed some of the poison.

Dr. Siff thinks the dose of poison was larger that the girl could take in this manner.
